

Flights Over Arctic Provide Data for Investigating Ozone Hole Depletion

Autor Administrator
jueves, 13 de mayo de 2010

Flights Over Arctic Provide Data for Investigating Ozone Hole Depletion

ScienceDaily (Apr. 6, 2010).

An international team of researchers is investigating ozone depletion in the polar stratosphere using data gathered during flights over the Arctic region at elevations of up to 20 kilometers...